Q: Python IOError on importing.pyo I'm trying to import a python module written in py3k, but the import fails with: IOError: [Errno 2] No such file or directory: '__pycache__/_dict' I've tried reinstalling py3k via easy_install and installing py3k from source. I've tried several versions of python: 3.3.1, 2.7.2, and 2.6.5 If anyone has an idea, I'd be really appreciative. UPDATE: I've been able to narrow the problem down to a specific subpackage. When I try to load In [1]: import a.c.subpackage.a I get a IOError. However, if I do In [2]: import sys In [3]: sys.path

OverWall For Windows

Developed by a team of two years, the game is based on unique mechanics of cooperative gameplay, and combines them with the emergency situation to create an original experience. You have to cooperate efficiently to make diverse firework ammo, and use them with your weapons to defend your position. Gather your enemies with the fan to shoot them all at once, move the lantern to get a view on the wall, reload the turret for your last chance firework, and much more! Try and obtain the highest score on levels always more crazy, with new traps and mechanics, to strengthen your bond with your friends. Or not. About The Game Gojyo-san and his coop friends have been building the Great Wall for a long time. The job went well till one day, his master, Emperor of the China, has disappeared during a trip to the wall. As Gojyo-san has been the closest to his master, he has to protect him. But the predators will not leave him alone. Your country is counting on you! Play as engineer pandas in local coop, you and three of your friends to defend the Great Wall of China from the predators that attempts to go over it! You have to cooperate efficiently to make diverse firework ammo, and use them with your weapons to defend your position. Gather your enemies with the fan to shoot them all at once, move the lantern to get a view on the wall, reload the turret for your last chance firework, and much more! Try and obtain the highest score on levels always more crazy, with new traps and mechanics, to strengthen your bond with your friends. Or not. OverWall is a game created for a 2nd year's school project at Interactive Art & Design, Montpellier. The goal was to create a coop game inspired by Overcooked. The project has been made with the help of the students of Audioworkshop school, who made the sound design of the game.
