New Released.. partagÃ© sur Dropbox.Q: Why is my "for" loop over my list of tuples taking more time than a loop over the list itself? I'm building a simple program where I search a list of tuples for a tuple that's close to the index of where I'm searching. If the tuple I'm searching for is found, I collect it in a dictionary and the dictionary is printed out. The problem is that it's much faster to search by dictionary comparison than with a list of tuples. The only problem is that the list of tuples never ends. >>> l = [(1,2), (2,3), (3,4), (4,5)] >>> for i in l: ...
