This is an adult game, beware of some rough language. The players must manage a Gladiator School in Ancient Rome during the Punic Wars, while earning enough favour to survive. Just click the game screen to start the game and enjoy the action. Game instructions: You can use WASD keys to move Mr. Hat. Q & E keys are used to 'crouch' and 'jump'. If the player sits on his butt or falls from the air, a number of pixels would be added to the player's score. A character can absorb two hits before losing a life, but if a character is hit by another character, he loses a life. When the player's character dies, he loses a life. After you complete a level, you can save the game by clicking on the Options button. This is done with a password. When you die, your score and your family name will go down. You also can be humiliated by showing a rival family member your butt. The player can use the in-game controls to lower their rage meter. For this, he or she has to click the icon which is just to the right of the Rage meter. If the rage bar is fully red, the player cannot use any normal action. When the player first starts the game, his rage meter is at zero. After the player exits the game, he or she will get a score based on the player's action. These scores are displayed in the 'Miscellaneous' screen. If the player has a $1 bill in his or her hand, the player can use it to purchase additional lives. "Gothic Pixel Art 2" - Project title is inspired by classic fantasy and steampunk: non-technological weapons, non-mechanized armies, non-industrial costumes. Not too long ago, it would seem that only a "stupid" player would try to "survive in a post-apocalyptic future". Now it's just all players are interesting, but different from others. Characters will be a part of their own story, and there will be several factions and players, all having their own code. Play in Story Mode or Co-op for 2-4 players. Different locations - the cities destroyed and destroyed or half-destroyed by accidents, they are not flooded. There are abandoned castles and castles, which are inhabited by various beings. At night, the streets are full of monsters and creatures. Different gameplay modes - the game have one

What's new in NaissanceE:

By RobinRichter Watch 644 Favourites 38 Comments 47K Views This is a fan made launch game inspired by the TV show "Mad Men" and was created by Justin Tyme in Unity. The title of the game was acquired from a line in the 1st episode of season one where Don Draper says "let's play a game".

Game Concept The game is a rogue-like fighting dungeon adventure. As you progress through the game, the amount of unexplored space increases. As you fight monsters, the number of rooms decreases. At the end of the game, the odds increase of getting a unique "god" enemy known as a "Boss", which for the Dungeon Knightress was the notoriously difficult enemy known as a "Barbossa" (from the Lord of the Rings movies).

Unit Design / Character Design The character design was taken directly from the Game Gods - Final Fantasy III Character Sheet. It's a pretty well known character based on the heavily modeled and etched 3d head of iconic Final Fantasy hero Morreti. I chose this character based on the sketches by Aaron Sims of the faces I wanted to portray for this concept. I chose the knight/paladin armor as I have always admired the Final Fantasy combat system with its army of colors and attention to detail, and as it fits a gender-neutral and strong individualist character. The other character design is a sailor from the popular Japanese Mahjong game. From this, I chose the vikings as the ship's navigation and operation team to resemble robust sea-going mercenaries that were often hired in this era. Also, I based the knights' skills and strengths on the Final Fantasy job system and the Super Nintendo World iteration known as Final Fantasy 6, commonly referred to as FF6 in fan-speculation because of the rumors of a possible FF7 release. On the HUD we have the Carrier's main compass which represents the player ship's next destination, the Ship's Meter that shows the growth of the journey based on the player's actions and the UI components that update the player's location, player health, and the map (as seen on every video game ever). The unique controller brings in some new functionality as well, like the ability to command the Ship to turn left and right using the A and B on the guard post controller, stopping at the left/right corner before continuing on to the next destination. It's interesting to note that the Game Gods Gunboat included
