.Q: Python inserting a word to string with conditions i would like to split a big text using python and insert a word at the time for example: string="world hello world" word="hello" and i want the output to be string = "hello world" A: import string word = "hello" string = "world hello world" # to print: for x in string.split(): if x == word: print(x + " " + " ").join(string[x:x+3])) # to have: print(string) result: >>> word = "hello" >>> string = "world hello world" >>> hello world hello world The present invention relates to safety indicators for vehicles and, more particularly, to vehicle crash sensors that may be employed with an occupant restraint system for determining when a vehicle has been subjected to a crash or other type of impact. Occupant restraint systems for a vehicle are well-known in the art, including devices such as seatbelts, airbags, side impact sensors and the like. Such systems typically include a sensor or sensors to detect a crash or an impact of some type, which is then communicated to a deployment mechanism, or the like. The deployment mechanism 6d1f23a050
