The guide seems pretty clear but in case of Nginx it says, for example, to add the following to the file so that the gitlab server is running with a proxy configuration. When I try something like this in.gitlab-ci.yml file stages: - build build-devel: stage: build script: - echo "Custom docker script" When I look into the web page it seems that something has failed and the build didn't go through. A: The purpose is to tell Gitlab to use the appropriate runner on the build job. When you build, you are using the build runner, which runs on the build machine and you're using the docker runner, which runs on the server, using docker. .gitlab-ci.yml can be used to setup specific environment variables, limit access,... In your case, it allows you to give a variable named GITLAB_PROXY_URL which contains the url to your proxy. For example, you can use the variable to add a proxy to your docker settings: GITLAB_PROXY_URL: The docker runner uses the docker-in-docker feature to launch its containers. This requires the name of the containers to have been placed in the $GITLAB_DOCKER_IMAGE variable. In your case, you're setting the GITLAB_PROXY_URL in your build job. When the build runner runs on the build machine, it injects the variable into the docker image. When the docker runner runs on the server, it uses the variable 04aeff104c
